Save the Date Heather C. Myers

"I love everything about this book, from Gemma and Dixon's relationship, from bouncing between the lines of fascination and often times, dislike, especially with personality clashes. But despite that, these two had chemistry from the very beginning."

"I like how the characters are developed and the fact that they don't fall in love right away."

"I really believe this endearing story is a must read for anyone who loves a good romance with heart and a little twist."

Typical love story: Girl meets boy. Girl socks boy in the face. Girl is forced to pretend boy is her fiancé.

As daughter of a man in charge of the CIA, Gemma Harrison knew her father was overprotective. She just didn't think it went as far as assigning a man she can't stand to be her bodyguard under the ruse of a fake marriage after receiving threats on his daughter's life. Now she has to plan a fake wedding to a guy - okay, maybe he's attractive and has a butterfly-inducing Southern accent - but she was only twenty years old! She wasn't expecting to settle down so soon, especially not when she had a crush on her community college's star athlete, Troy. Now that Agent Dixon Black is constantly with her, her dreams of making out in the backseat of Troy's Camaro are completely ruined. Although, the more time she spends with Dixon, the more she realizes he's not all that bad...
