Worth dying for

She woke up after three days. She didn't sustain any serious injuries but suffered from carbon monoxide poisoning because of smoke inhalation. The first question she asked was where's Willy?

The question that surprised me

After seven years, I felt, can we meet.....was outlandishly informal, to the point of being indecent. I could ignore her, pretend that there was no such mail. Just a click and it would disappear. But the turmoil brewing within me, wouldn't let me do so.

Just like how we started

I got pregnant not long after we started dating. We tried to stretch out the time to make it seem longer, but in truth we could count on one hand the number of weeks we had been together.

When she left away

Instantly turned towards the girl and felt his heart beating loudly. She was even more beautiful up close. He barely managed to speak up words of invitation asking her to join him at his table.

Who tells everything

And that was it. After 11 years of discussion, there was nothing more to say. "Every relationship you will ever have is going to end," my mother had told me.

The love surprise

We tried to let it go. We even joked about the day we were going to have to stop calling and texting each other, but it never came. I would fly to Florida every few weeks, he would fly to Washington. It was so hard to be apart.

For her smile

The moment she want to ask her best friend, the boy appear in front of her. With an unfamiliar sign language, he told her "I spent more than a year's time, to force myself to learn sign language, in order to tell you, I have not forgot our promise, give me an opportunity, let me be your voice. I love you."

The dream love

Once at home, I ran to my room, breaking down immediately upon my door's closure. I couldn't stop crying for three hours, my heart had broken. I hadn't realized that he filled all the holes in my heart, only to have them emptied when we parted.
